

Tech Tip of the Week

AT is related to function, rather than a specific disability.

When considering AT think SETT

- Student: current abilities, needs and what do they need to do
- Environment: resources, supports, materials and devices already available, where to activities occur, and what physical barriers are present
- Task: what are the other children doing, what activities naturally occur in the environment, what are the critical elements of the activity, could technology be used to support student participation
- Technology: start with no-tech or low tech try new strategies with what you are already using try the tools you are using in a different way
